GOOD REPUTATIONS ARE EARNED
Kay Stepper

Young men who aspire to high place should remember one truth of great importance.

It is the necessity for stern adherence to those ideals which go into the building of good character.

The world has a way of recognizing and helping the young and ambitious who are of good reputation.

TIME MARCHING FORWARD!

Yes, time does march forward and so do we. We are now leaving the early hour of morning and slowly entering the hour of noon—years ahead. What's in store for us? Riches? Happiness? Misery? Disappointment? That we cannot tell—time alone tells that.

In the early hours of noon we search for our positions on the minute hands—the steps of success. We must climb—climb these steps—they are very high and hard. Can we climb them successfully? Without difficulty? Have we already succeeded that we need not climb them? Or do we have to try to climb them in spite of the difficulties, and trials? We must face these trials and difficulties with our "chins up." If we don't face them bravely, but let people "push" us or pull us out of our hardships, we're cowards, afraid to do it ourselves, we can't face it, or take it. We must learn now, early, to keep our "chins up" and be able to "take it" as it comes along, and not fear. Later we won't regret it when we reach the top.

The top means success! Don't let these small trials of life step in our paths and spoil our happiness . . . who doesn't want it? We all do . . . why not decide now to reach the top and be happy and succeed before Time stops us? Begin now to go with Time—take advantage of the time left—make the best of it while there still is time.

A GLAD FAREWELL

I said bood-bye to you with laughing lips,
They mocked the hurt of my poor aching heart.
I did not feel you touch my fingertips,
Before I softly drew myself apart.

I smiled and stood 'till you were out of sight,
I waved my handkerchief, a sign of pride.
And homeward carried me so brave and bright
That none might guess the ache I strove to hide.

And when alone, the hot tears start to fall,
From tight-closed lids I brush them pained away.
I often think the hardest thing of all,
Is feel my heart break when I am so gay!

JEAN SCANNELLA

THROUGH THE YEARS

To you, freshmen,
We leave the care
That we yesterday
Had to bear.

To you, sophomore,—
Don't be a miser;
Get all the lore you can,
And be a bit wiser.

To you, Juniors,
Who think you know it all,
Yet when your cards you see,
You bawl.

O, seniors,
Who wear time out,
All, all in vain
Will you yearn for vanished days again.

Charlotte Kaplan, 415A.

THE DREAM-MAN

Lois glanced at the clock as a distant whistle sounded. Whew, she thought, fifteen minutes to get dressed and catch the 7:45 trolley. Here she was with a long run in her one and only pair of stockings. Why hadn't she noticed that last night? Her white shoes were filthy. Oh, well, the brown ones would do for today. She bit the thread and hurriedly pulled on her stocking. Now where had she left that other brown shoes? Oh, here it was. At seven-forty she gulped down a glass of cold milk as she buttoned her jacket. She grabbed her lunch in one arm, her books in the other, and practically ran all of the two blocks to the trolley stop. Just as she reached the corner, she saw the car come into view at the top of the hill. "Well," she thought, "at least I made it."

As the car came to a stop, she boarded the overcrowded vehicle and prayed that "he" was on it. If she had hurried in vain . . . well. Suddenly she spied him—the man of her dreams. She studied his profile. Ah, what a match for Bob Taylor! She didn't know him for she had only seen him twice before and she had been walking while he was riding.

Without warning, the car came to a sudden stop and Lois fell against a man who stood next to her. Her hat flew to the other side of her head, covering her left eye. Her lunch fell into the lap of a fat woman who glared at the poor girl. She retrieved her lunch and tried to straighten her hat with her right hand. As she took her hand from the strap overhead, the car started again, and Lois was again caught off-balance. Once again she fell against the man. She smiled crookedly as with his help she caught the strap once more. Her "dream-man" took this unfortunate moment to look up from his newspaper. What he saw struck him as being very amusing. He smiled broadly at Lois' crooked hat and flushed face. Lois' heart leaped, but when she realized what he found so amusing, her heart did a quick turn-over, and fell back to normal leaving her with a very empty feeling. Finally the car came to High Street. Lois painfully made her way to the front of the car. The ticket she handed the motorman was badly wrinkled from clutching it so tightly. As the trolley rolled past her, the "dream-man" smiled at her from the window. This was too much for her. Lois merely glared.

ESTHER FISHER.

HE'D BE IDEAL IF HE HAD—

Cliff Bender's hair.
Carl Allamo's mustache.
Bernie Feirstein's dressing ability.
Bob Miller's physique.
Angelo Travisano's dancing ability.
Joe Fletcher's wit.
Vito Passero's height.
John Del Mauro's eyes.

I CAN EASILY IMAGINE—

Evelyn Dixon winning the Olympics as the fastest gum-chewer!

William Nolan as another New Sparks.

Elmer Longendyke, salesman for soap that gives "that school-boy complexion."

Emil Ozimek as a history teacher.

Phyllis Sallans as editor of "Ladies' Sports Weekly."

Agnes McKeon as a typing champion.

Helen Sokolski as Zazu Pitts' stand-in.

Dorothy Curran as a schoolmarm.

Lena Bertucci as a radio lecturer on how to catch a man and hold him.

Louise Louderbough as the secretary who pleases (as an ornament).

Lois Demarest as a great actress.

Marie Baumgartener, secretary to the most absent-minded man in America.

Rose Corbo, Yolanda Conte, Betty Ciliberti and Lucy Caniano all working in the same office at the same job at the same time. ("One for all and all for one!")

Jack Wheat as the leader of a great symphony orchestra.

Jack Riggi as the successor of George Raft.

Joseph Hrebella as a champion fighter.

Katherine Messina succeeding in grand opera.

Mike Gaeta saying it looks like rain when his pals are planning a picnic.

Athena Fillio calling the roll of her class of 1B's.

Ernest Holt as the clown in Barnum and Bailey's show.

Arthur Nunn as a noted politician.

Constance Valenti speaking for Minnie Mouse.

Cliff Bender as a model for hair-tonic.

Angelo Travisano in a marathon contest. (He'll win.)

Vincent Mancuso telling stories of what he "could have done if he had—"

Alice Marlott as a magazine model for a hair-growing company.

WE NEVER SAW—

Edna Noke with her hands in back of her.

Dorothy Curran not on the honor roll.

Vincent Mancuso silent.

Marie Morro five feet tall.

Marie Baumgartener not being pleasant.

Mike Gaeta not arguing about the 4A class.

John Knutilla short.

Dora Ferrara not being chased by a male.

Kenneth Wagenback closing a window.

Jim Keeley not afraid of the "Angles."

Eleanor MacGuire shout.

June Lawrence, without gum.

Irene Fletcher angry.

Grace D'Andrea co-operate with the class.

Ernest Holt not clowning.

From Principal to Parent

Dear Parents:

It is easy to make resolutions. It takes courage and strength of character as well as the fixed determination of an individual to keep them. Character and determination act as a track, or roadbed for the smooth movement of life towards success goals. It takes courage and nerve, to go over the top when trials and troubles are the life obstacles which must be conquered. Therefore have your dear ones be ready with resolves to be kept. Let them be ever alert and courageous, to overcome difficulties and maintain an ethical and religious conviction that the good in life is ever worth seeking.

Sincerely yours,

William Weiner
Principal.

CLASS WILL

We, the graduating class of June 1937, being sound of mind (thanks to our faculty advisers) and strong of limb (thanks to our gym), do hereby draw up and publish this, our last Will in this great institution of education, Central High School. We allow that our thoughts, hopes, and property be distributed in the following manner:

ARTICLE I

Section 1. To the Freshman do we give the privilege of using the elevator until they receive enough knowledge and strength to walk up and down the stairways.

Section 2. To the Sophomore do we bestow the honor and privilege of selling elevator tickets to the Freshman.

Section 3. To the Juniors do we leave all our remaining knowledge so that they may pass into full seniorship.

Section 4. To the new 4A class do we leave this Pivot to inspire and help them in preparation for their own accomplishment.

Section 5. To the school in general, we give the honor and pleasure of viewing our faces on the wall.

Section 6. To Lady Luck do we give our ever-lasting gratitude for our diplomas.

ARTICLE II

Section 1. To our Alma Mater we extend our sincere appreciation for the pleasant and educating period experienced here.

Section 2. To our Faculty, do we send endless thanks for the untiring efforts they bestowed upon us in their attempt to give us knowledge.

Section 3. To our beloved principal, Mr. Wiener, do we give our appreciation for his interesting talks.

Section 4. To our faculty adviser, Mr. Miller, do we leave the memories of an admiring class which appreciates greatly his intelligent guidance and skillful suggestions.

In witness thereof, we, the class of June 1937, hereby put our signatures to these article in the hope that others in the future may appreciate the significance of our thoughts.

FELIX MELLENO.

FOOTBALL

Past Season—Felix Melleno

Future Season—Peter Trotta

LOOKING INTO THE PAST

The 1936 football season saw Central High's locomotive once more puffing along as in days gone by. This campaign brought Central back to the football highlights as their impressive record will verify. The team captured the city championship with much pomp and glory.

We opened our season at Kearny and defeated the local boys 7—0. The following Saturday we met last year's city champs and choo-chooed all over as the title defenders. The outlook was very promising indeed and the talk was going around "Sports Avenue" that Central was a serious contender for the state title, but alas! one rainy, gloomy Saturday afternoon we treked up to Irvington to meet the suburban high school and after a most heart-breaking, thrilling game our heroes walked off the field beaten by the slender count of 2—0. The Blue and White then met and defeated East Side, Weequahic and Belleville in successive weeks. Then the afternoon of the great Barringer game appeared and after a hard-fought battle both schools walked off the field deadlocked for the fourth successive year. This set the stage for the following Saturday when we were scheduled to meet South Side. The city title was at stake in this game as both Central and South Side were tied in league standing. The Blue and White were out to win, and win they did, for our boys rose and tramped over the boys from the southern end of the city. Thanksgiving Day found a new opponent for Central, and our boys, not contented with turkey, had oranges for dinner as they easily defeated Orange High School to end a glorious season for our Alma Mater.

In accomplishing this great record much credit and praise is due to our youthful coach, Mr. Cannon, for his splendid work; to the managers for their untiring efforts; and to the players themselves who fought hard all season so that they could bring this championship to our school.

DEPARTING ATHLETES

By this term's graduation Central will lose many stellar athletes. Among the most prominent is Fred Tuck, who won great fame on the gridiron. He was mentioned as an all-state tackle and his work will surely be missed this coming season. Bob Miller, all-city football center, also performed on the swimming team. Howard Seigle came up from the second team and before anyone realized it Howie snared a regular's berth and proved himself worthy of the promotion. Philip Boyle and Joe Coccuza both performed on the 1935 State Championship cross-country team. Howie also performed on the baseball team. Jerry Meola and Charles Parsons both played on the baseball team. Bill Bogucki captained the swimming team.

'CROSS COUNTRY

The 1936 cross-country team, despite their weakened condition due to the graduation of five of the 1935 state-championship team, had a fair season. Although they did not win any titles, as the representatives of last year's squad did, the team, with only three veterans, proved to be a tough opponent for every school we met in dual meets. The greatest triumph of the season proved to be our victory over Kearny High, who later went on to win the State Championship.

The 1937 team should go far in state competition; for, if all goes right, another state title will be in Central's trophy room. The athletes returning next fall in the attempt to annex the state title look very strong. These athletes are: Captain Bob Clarfield, Sam Mitchell, Ed White, Jack Kassel, Mike Acunzo and Frank Del Vecho. Other promising candidates are Frank Leibonald, Wm. Davidson and Salvatore Cavellera.
